JUBILEE WEEK.

MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH OF THE SACRED HEART CELEBRATE QUARTER CENTURY ANNIVERSARY.

Imposing Religious Services on Sunday attended by over One Thousand People—Glowing Tributes paid to Father Nardiello in Union Hall Monday Night—Parochial School Children and Church Societies Celebrate the Silver Jubilee.

The silver jubilee services in honor of the quarter-century anniversary of the Rev. Joseph M. Nardiello's rectorship over the Church of the Sacred Heart began on Sunday morning with an imposing religious service led by the Bishop of the diocese. Upwards of one thousand people attended the service. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and a choir and orchestra under the direction of Musical Director Martin Toohey, rendered magnificent music.

Among the priests in attendance were Monsignor Stafford of Seton Hall, the Rev. T. A. Wallace, Chancellor of the diocese; the Very Rev. Dean Flynn of Morristown, Monsignor O'Grady of New Brunswick, Dean Mulligan of Camden, Fathers Ernest, Cody, Corrigan and McKeever of Newark, Fathers Ter Woert and Ryan of Jersey City, Kernan of Passaic, Byrne of Caldwell, Vassalo of Summit, Dunn of Irvington, Federici of Plainfield, Whalen of Bayonne, Hogan of Trenton, and Farrington of Sayreville. The officers of the mass who celebrated with Bishop O'Connor in the sanctuary were Father Ter Woert, celebrant; Fathers Eagan and Dunn, deacons; Dean Flynn and Father Corrigan, subdeacons. Father Wallace was master of ceremonies.

The sermon was preached by Father Brady of South Amboy, and at the close Father Nardiello delivered a short address, in which he congratulated his people on the work accomplished by them during the last twenty-five years. Father Nardiello said the success of the church was largely due to their efforts. Father Nardiello then thanked the Bishop and visiting clergymen for attending the service.

The visitors were entertained at dinner by Father Nardiello in the new school hall in Liberty Street, while the Sisters of Charity were dined in the school hall in State Street.

The vesper service in the evening was also largely attended. Father Cody preached the sermon. Other religious services in connection with the jubilee were held on Monday and Tuesday mornings in the church.

Public participation in the jubilee week services took place Monday night in Union Hall, when addresses were made in the name of the community by the Rev. Father Byrne of Caldwell, who spoke for the church, Thomas Oakes for the townspeople, G. Lee Stout on Father Nardiello's interests and activities as a citizen of the town, Scott Lord of Glen Ridge on the temporal power of the Roman Catholic church, and Peter J. Quinn, who on behalf of the parishioners of the Church of the Sacred Heart presented the rector with a purse containing a jubilee gift of $1,500, subscribed by the people of the church. The exercises were interspersed with music by Coffman's orchestra and piano selections by Ferdinand Himmerlich. A vocal solo, "The Promise of Life," by Miss Nora Hickey, soprano soloist of the church, was one of the many pleasing features of the evening, and in response to an enthusiastic encore Miss Hickey sang "Believe me, if all those endearing young charms."

It was nearly half-past eight o'clock when Peter J. Quinn, Michael N. Higgins and Joseph Durr of the committee of arrangements entered the hall with Father Nardiello and a number of visiting clergy. The large crowd that filled the hall and a large number of guests on the platform arose and applauded vigorously until the processional party reached the platform, where Father Nardiello was greeted with a hearty handshake by the people on the platform.

Peter J. Quinn presided over the meeting and introduced as the first speaker the Rev. Father Byrne of Caldwell, one of the oldest priests in the Newark diocese. Father Byrne spoke in a happy strain. His reminiscences of the early condition of the Roman Catholic churches in this vicinity were interesting. He paid a glowing tribute to the late Father Hogan, who instituted the Church of the Immaculate Conception in West Bloomfield in 1862, which was well known to the older members of the Bloomfield parish which was cut off from the Montclair parish large measure of praise for what had been done for the cause of Christ in the Bloomfield parish. Father Byrne portrayed the spiritual side of Father Nardiello's work among the people of his parish, and of blessings that had followed it. He closed his remarks with fervent wishes for the continued prosperity and growth of the Bloomfield parish, and for the spiritual and temporal welfare of its rector and people. Father Byrne's address deeply touched the people.

Chairman Quinn next introduced Mr. Thomas Oakes as one of the citizens of the town who had always manifested a friendly interest in the Church of the Sacred Heart and its rector and people. Mr. Oakes responded as follows:

It gives me great pleasure to meet with you on this anniversary occasion, and join with you in expressions of good will and hearty commendation of the grand work that has been done in this parish under the efficient leadership of our friend Father Nardiello, who now completes a quarter of a century of faithful service in this town.

Those of us who can recall the announcement made twenty-five years ago that an Italian priest had been assigned to this place to care for the interests of the Catholic church, will remember that much concern was manifest and many thought a great mistake had been made. Probably not an Italian family lived within our borders at that time, and one of another nationality, apparently, would have better suited the conditions then existing. But, my friends, all doubts are dispelled. The development of this parish under the marvellous leadership of this Italian priest has put to silence all critics, and we are met this evening to unite with you in commending the wisdom of that appointment.

To those of us who have been onlookers, it would appear that Father Nardiello came to this town at a most inauspicious time. No church, no parish existed, no services were held within the town. The interest of the Catholic population was divided between Belleville and Montclair, where were located the nearest churches. He came unknown, unheralded, and I had almost said without friends. I do not wish to imply that he had any enemies, but no resident friends stood ready to welcome him to this place and share with him the burdens he was about to assume.

With characteristic promptness he proceeded to gather his people around him and institute the regular and formal church service in one of our public halls. His people were few in numbers at first, but ever increasing and always loyal to him and his purposes. The erection of a church on Bloomfield Avenue was at once begun, and within a few months was ready for occupancy, and then commenced the first regular service held in a Catholic church in the town of Bloomfield. From that day to the present the advancement has been rapid and continuous. Church, schoolhouses, clubhouse, hall and rectory, and the establishment of a cemetery have all followed in quick succession. Magic like, they have sprung into existence to meet the demands of this growing congregation.

Under his personal supervision all these buildings have been erected. His various accomplishments, covering as they do all branches of the building trades, has been of especial value to this parish in its constructive work. To the casual observer it would appear that he is his own architect, his own boss mason, his own superintendent, and I had almost said his own walking delegate.

But, my friends, the crowning work of your incomparable leader is the imposing church edifice on yonder park. This stately building, unsurpassed for location, commanding the admiration of all, a credit to the parish, an ornament to the town, and let us hope a lasting monument to the name of him who has given the energies of his life in the founding and establishing of this parish and this church. The church exists for use, not ornament. Let then its beneficent influences go forth throughout this community, lifting up those who are cast down, comforting those who are afflicted, and pointing the way that leads to life eternal. Let the teachings of these schools have for its object the upbuilding of character. Educate these young people in hand and heart and fit them for the duties of life. Inspire them to nobler ideals and grander purposes.

It has been my privilege to be connected with the public school system of our town for nearly twenty-five years, extending to a period just previous to the establishment of your first parochial school. At that time many of our scholars were of Catholic parentage, but soon began to drop out, and it is fair to presume dropped into the parochial school. And now, my friends, I can wish no greater good than, yet for another twenty-five years, you keep our good friend with you, and I can wish you no greater measure of success than you have experienced in the past. Go on then in the good work.

Your means are greatly enlarged, the field unlimited. Your ability has been demonstrated, your duty is realized. Let now the obligation be fully met.

Following Mr. Oakes, Chairman Quinn introduced G. Lee Stout, another prominent citizen of the town who had always manifested a friendly interest towards the people of the Church of the Sacred Heart and with the rector of the church. Mr. Stout disclaimed any ability to make an oration such as might be appropriate to the event which the people had gathered to celebrate, and

FINE CONCERT

Given by the Quartette and Choir of Westminster Presbyterian Church Tuesday Night—Jarvis Memorial Hall Filled with an Appreciative and Delighted Audience—An Excellent Programme.

A notable musical event took place on Tuesday night in Jarvis Memorial Hall, when the quartette and choir of Westminster Presbyterian Church gave a complimentary concert. Notwithstanding the stormy weather, upwards of six hundred people were present and enjoyed the music. The concert was a pleasing affair, artistically and socially. It was the first time that some of the people present had attended an affair of the kind in this town, and they were agreeably surprised with the beautiful hall and the excellence of the music. Miss Stockwell, the new contralto at Westminster, made her first appearance in a public concert here on this occasion. She delighted the large audience and had to respond to an enthusiastic encore. She is a remarkably talented musician and has a promising future. The tones of her rich full voice filled the large hall with perfect ease.

Mr Roubaud has few superiors as a bass singer in church music. He belongs to Bloomfield, and the people here are proud of his ability and talent, and he is always sure of an appreciative welcome. The solo selection from "The Queen of Sheba" sung by Mr Roubaud Tuesday night was not in accord with his best line of work. He was more at home in his second selection "Even bravest hearts may swell" from Faust, which he carried through magnificently.

Miss Polhamus was assigned the arduous task of sustaining the soprano role in Max Bruch's stirring cantata "Fair Ellen." She acquitted herself admirably and afforded great pleasure to her wide circle of friends here. Miss Polhamus's work is not new to the public. She has been heard for several years in Westminster Church, and has done much towards keeping up the fine reputation which the quartette enjoys.

Mr. Handel, the Westminster quartette tenor, also sustained a solo role in the cantata in a creditable manner. This part, being written for baritone, gave Mr. Handel very little opportunity to show the fine quality of his voice. He sings with a style and finish that shows the well-trained musician.

Mr. U. C. Gosswellier, a young musician from Newark, rendered several 'cello solos which were well received, and evidenced that the young man had a skilful mastery of that instrument.

The chorus work throughout the entire programme was fine. The Swabian Folk-song "Come, Dorothy Come," was a superb piece of work and delighted the audience. The chorus showed the result of excellent training on the part of Mr. Minier, who on this occasion made his first appearance here as a conductor. Heretofore he has always been obliged to accompany the chorus as organist. The programme was as follows:

Organ Solo, Fra Diavolo (Le Dernier Jour de Mascarade)	D. Auber
Mr. Gosswellier.
Part Song, Love and the World's Illusion	C. Jolliffe
Solo, At Parting	Jas. H. Rogers
Miss Stockwell.
Chorus, Welcome, Dorothy Come	Swabian Folksong
Solo, Happy Day. Country Dance from Robin Hood	De Koven
Violin Etude Caprice	Gollermann
Mr. Gosswellier.
Part Song, The Bee and the Dove. Quartet	F. H. Cowen
Short aria from "The Queen of Sheba" Mr. Roubaud	Gounod
Fair Ellen. For Soprano, Tenor and Chorus	Max Bruch

The chorus consisted of Sopranos—Miss Newton, Mrs. Handel, Miss Shaw, Miss Duncan, Miss Russell, Miss Ferguson, Miss Van Tassel, Miss Palmer, Miss Teall; altos—Miss Defendorf, Mrs. Sutphen, Miss Schoonmaker, Miss Imhoff, Mrs. MacLean, Mrs Boyd, Miss Moyer, Mrs. Willits, Miss Biggart; tenors—Messrs. Woodward, Moull, Shearer, Spear, Lyall, Cock, Healy; bassos—Messrs. Scott, Amerman, Sheldon, Rowe, Biggart, Williams, Schouler.

After the concert those who took part in the concert and a number of friends spent a social hour in the church parlors. Vocal and instrumental music were features of the affair, Mr. Gosswelier playing some very delightful 'cello music. The members of the chorus presented their leader, Mr. Minier, with a handsome silver and ivory ornamented baton.

Ferguson—Butterfield.

Miss Clara Butterfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Butterfield of Kearny, and Charles R. Ferguson of this town were married at the home of the bride in Halstead Street, Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Hutchinson officiated.

The bride was attired in mousseline de soie trimmed with Mexican drawn work, and carried white bride roses. She wore a pearl sunburst, the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Sabie Ferguson was bridesmaid, and she was attired in white Persian lawn, trimmed with and wore a gold brace[illegible], the

MUNICIPAL BUILDING.

Subject of a Conference Wednesday Night Between the Board of Trade's Sub Committee on Municipal Affairs and the Members of the Town Council—Special Meeting of the Board of Trade Called for Thursday Evening, July 2d.

An important public matter will soon demand the attention of the people of this town. It is now well known that the Town Council recently took important steps towards purchasing land and erecting a municipal building. The alleged necessity for better fire houses impelled the Council to action in that direction. The Council's proposed action in the matter of a municipal building was governed chiefly by utilitarian and economical motives, and the project as outlined was intended to effect a reduction below the present rentals paid out now for town offices, police and fire headquarters. The Council's plan called for a neat and substantial brick building located on the north side of Washington Street between the Centre and the railroad.

At the June meeting of the Board of Trade David G. Garabrant brought up the matter of a municipal building for discussion. Chairman George Peterson of the Town Council gave the members of the Board of Trade a detailed account of the Council's plans in the matter and the steps so far taken towards carrying it out. The objection made by Mr. Garabrant and others to the Council's scheme was that the plans of the Council did not call for the kind of a building that the people wanted for a town hall and the location was not suitable. Mr. Peterson conceded the validity of both objections, but said that the Council was governed in its action by a knowledge of the state of the public purse and the immediate needs of the town. Fire houses, Mr. Peterson said, were an actual necessity, and the best location for affording the most efficient fire protection was the principal question in view when the Council selected the Washington Avenue site, and it was the opinion of the Council that an addition of a few thousand dollars to the proposed issue of bonds for fire houses would enable the Council to construct a building that could also be used for all other town purposes. Mr. Peterson admitted that a $50,000 building on the Nash Corner property would be much more desirable, but the present Town Council did not believe that the people were in a position to assume any further bonded indebtedness at present other than what was actually necessary. Some members of the Board of Trade were fearful that the Council might go ahead with the Washington Avenue plan, and it was decided to have an early conference of the Board of Trade Committee on Municipal Affairs and the members of the Town Council for the purpose of considering the project of a municipal building. That conference was held Wednesday night in the Town Council room, and a special meeting of the Board of Trade will be held Thursday evening, July 2d, to hear the report of the committee.

Death of Charles H Burckett.

Charles H. Burckett, a resident of this town for several years, died suddenly at his home, No. 128 Linden Avenue, on Thursday morning, the 25th instant.

Mr. Burckett was a great grandson of Lieutenant-Colonel James Mellen, who served with distinction in the Revolutionary war and at one time aide-de-camp to General Washington.

At the time of his death Mr. Burckett was president of the Malt Creamlet Company and also interested in several important inventions.

He is survived by two brothers, Walter L. and James Mellen Burckett, well-known residents of Montclair, and his widow nee Mary Martin, of Deckertown, whom he married June 2, 1897.

Mr. Burckett was a sincere Christian and a devoted husband.

Flag Raising at Glen Ridge.

The flag raising and opening of "Fernwood," the Essex County Fresh Air Home in Glen Ridge, which was postponed from last week, will take place this afternoon. The home is on Ridgewood Avenue. The flag was presented by the Christian Endeavor Societies of one of the churches in Newark. Short addresses will be made by the President of the Union, John T. Sproull, and other officers. Miss Minnie C. Ginger has been engaged to act as matron during the summer and Miss Edna B. Dodd has been appointed as a kindergarten teacher.

The Oldsmobile.

A. P. Heyer, proprietor of the Heyer Auto Machine Works, No. 516 Bloomfield Avenue, is agent for the Oldsmobile, a simple, safe and practical automobile. The Oldsmobile at Mr. Heyer's [illegible] he will give complete instruction to

Daughter of Jairus.

Stainer's sacred cantata "The Daughter of Jairus" was sung in the Park M. E. Church Sunday evening by the Park Choral Union, assisted by Miss C. S. Doll, soprano; Raymond Smith, tenor; E. S. Campbell, bass; Miss Florence Selick, organist, and Miss Emma Spencer, assistant organist. The production was under the direction of Prof. P. J. Smith, conductor of the union. There was a large attendance at the service. The members of the Choral Union were warmly congratulated over the successful rendition of the cantata. The cantata programme was arranged as follows:

Brookside School.

The eighth grade graduating exercises in Public School No. 3, (Brookside), took place in the school hall Thursday night and was largely attended by the people in that school district. The recitations were well delivered by the graduates, and Superintendent of Schools William E. Chancellor made an interesting address and presented the certificates. In the programme given below the name of Elsie May Frank does not appear. She is a member of the graduating class, but was excused from recitation on account of illness. The following is the programme of exercises:

Base-ball

A good game of base-ball is promised for this afternoon on the Arlington Avenue grounds, when the American Sheet Steel Company's team from the New York office will play the Watsessing team. The New York club is said to be made up of a combination of expert athletes.

Stolen Horse Recovered.

Samuel Berry of Paterson obtained a search warrant Tuesday from Recorder Thomas P. Day of Nutley and accompanied by Chief of Police Knabb of the latter place, went to Brookdale, where they discovered a horse which the complainant says was stolen from him two months ago. The animal was found in the stable of Frederick Stimes, a farmer. The latter was not at home, but a man employed by him stated that the horse was purchased from a dealer in Newark and had changed hands several times before his employer came into possession of him.

That the people of the Third Ward are deeply interested in the Public School No. 8, (Watsessing), was amply demonstrated Thursday night when the first commencement held in that school took place. The large school hall was crowded with the relatives and friends of the graduating class of nine girls who had finished the Grammar department course. An enjoyable programme of entertainment was carried out and was accompanied by demonstrations of enthusiasm on the part of the audience equal to that which marks a high school commencement.

The commencement was a great success, and Principal Agnew and his corps of teachers were congratulated over the gratifying results of their work. The singing by a large chorus of children led by Prof. Smith was a pleasant feature of the affair. A solo by Miss Gertrude Irene Wilde of the graduating class was received with great delight, and the young singer was highly commended. Following is the programme:
